PATRICIA NOALL FOUR EVENT WINNER MARCEL GERY WINS FIVE NORTH YORK WINS COMBINED TITLE

PATRICIA YOUNG

Let's get one thing straight. Edmonton is a very cold place. Now that has been said we can talk about the meet.

It was an uneven national championship, but that did not stop several swimmers from taking advantage of the situation. They came up big winners, while others seemed to lope through their races. Marcel Gery, NYAC, won five events. Patricia Noall, CNMN and Etobicoke's Allison Higson both won four. Lori Melien, AAC took three golds and two silvers.

Over the past two years Patricia Noall has moved up through the freestyle ranks. At this meet she dominated everything from the 100 to 800. That is something that only a handful of Canadian women have managed.

"I've improved my training and changed my stroke a little, but it's really not much different than last year," said the seventeen-year-old Noall. "Some of the freestylers weren't swimming their events here and others weren't ready; I was. I expected to do well.

"The fact that some of the people made finals with times that were slower than the qualifying times to get into this meet didn't bother me. I just concentrated on what I had to do and ignore the rest."

"Patricia is right on target," said her coach, Eric Kremer. "It is the same as last year. We were looking good in the winter, but unfortunately she got sick and was out of the water for four weeks during the spring. This year she is looking strong and healthy. I don't see any problems for her."

Until recently one of the most disappointing and boring events for Canadian swimming has been the women's backstroke, but Kia Puhm's and Lori Melien's slugfest for the crown has everyone sitting up and taking notice. Melien showed her strength in the sprints, winning the 50 and the 100 while Puhm took the 200.

"Lori's swim in the 100 was a lifetime best," said coach Paul Meronen. "It wasn't quite what we were looking for. I thought she would be a few tenths faster. Coming off the heels of the 50 fly win she had a little letdown in intensity. The first 50 split wasn't what it should have been.

"She has the potential of going in any direction; fly, free, or back. I felt that the top of the field was too strong in the free and she wasn't ready to over take them. Her development has been cyclical. One season one stroke will improve. Last season it was easier to win in the backstroke. She swam so well that it was a natural evolution for her to continue this season.

"Having Lori and Kia bouncing off each other is great for the sport. They are both young and both excited. There is boundless room for improvement."

Turlough O'Hare, CDSC, didn't seem to notice that the meet was not as exciting as most national championships. O'Hare won the 400 and 800 freestyles and medalled in the 200 and 1500.

"With two golds, a silver and a bronze, how could this be anything but a great meet" he said.

"This year I've gone injury free. I hurt my shoulder after the Commonwealth Games trials and it took until last season to learn how to control it. My stroke wasn't really right and I was growing a lot. I really overtrained. I've learned to hold my stroke better."

North York AC won the overall team championship. That was the first national team title in it's thirty year history. "We came here ready to race, "said head coach Jim Fowlie. "We weren't preoccupied with winter times and we took advantage of the opportunities left open by other people. Our kids very seldom get the chance to pull together for a team title since we are split up between so many different levels.

"Byron (MacDonald) and Neil (Harvey) have done a terrific coaching job this year at U of T (U of T races for NYAC). They have made U of T a very attractive place for international level athletes to train."

The back bone of NYAC and the star of the meet was Marcel Gery. Despite an uncertain future this year, he swam the meet to win. He won the 100 and 200 freestyle and a silver in the 50 and took gold in all three butterfly races.

"We expected him to swim through the 200 fly'" said Fowlie, "but I don't think he knows how to do it. He goes into each race determined to win."

Allison Higson, ESC, is known as Canada's top breaststroker, but she is making a mark in individual medley. Higson won the 100 breaststroke and both IM's.

"We are really happy with her IM performances," said ESC coach, Paul Bergen. "You can't just point to one reason why Allison is so talented. She does so many little things right and they add up."

Besides the big winners there were other bright spots. Young swimmers like Kristin Topham, MANTA, and Keltie Duggan, EKSC, showed promise. Topham was fourth with a lifetime best in the 100 free and anchored her club to a second in the 4x50 free relay. Duggan has moved into third spot in breaststroke and showed signs of being able to climbing even higher.

Turlough O'Hare, CDSC David Landry

The two main topics of discussion in Edmonton were the Olympic selection criteria and performances at the meet. Here's what the coaches and swimmers were saying.

Paul Bergen, ESC I think that Ben Johnson setting a world record at 60 metres in the winter helped set up his world record in the 100 metres that summer. The same thing is true in swimming. It is easier to go fast short course than long course at this time of the year.

If the meet was short course we could hold it somewhere where relatively warm like Vancouver. Canada has to stop holding winter championships in the coldest place in the country.

Jim Fowlie, NYAC The meet is about what I expected. Canadian swimming has to make dramatic changes in streamlining our program. It makes no difference if this meet is long course or short. The guys will race long or short. We should follow through with our four year plan.

Dave Johnson, EKSC I'm disappointed in the meet. I feel the performance level isn't what we expected or needed this close to the Olympic trials. When you get the leading program in the country poo-pooing the meet, you end up with other people uncertain how to come at the meet. I think there has been a lot of excuse making and I hope the country comes around between now and the trials. If this is any indication we are in serious difficulty.

The selection criteria is where it is and we had better get used to it. I hope it doesn't change. This is the point where we get serious or we are just paying lip service to our goals.

Byron MacDonald, NYAC I've always thought that the Edmonton pool was OK, but not great. There has been an edge taken off the performances by the atmosphere and the attitudes of some of the clubs. That has an effect that just spirals downward. It will take a lot of work on the part of the swimmers and coaches to re-trench and get back up for May.

The only difficulty I have with the selection criteria is that it came up this year. It would have been nice to have had that philosophy for a couple of years, but it has got the top people gearing up. People are thinking "faster" than they normally would have.

Paul Meronen, AAC It has been a great meet for those who came prepared to swim. The less experienced kids, those who haven't seen themselves as winners before are going to be leaving the meet believing there is a chance to be the best in the country this summer.

Deryk Snelling, UCSC It's a good meet, but it just doesn't have the atmosphere that you would hope for in a national championship. It could be the fact that it is an Olympic year and it is half way through the preparation phase for the trials.

I like the original approach as the selection criteria. That way the best racers go. But there are good reasons for this standard. It motivates people who are very good. We've known for a long time that we've needed a harder standard. It gets people working that little bit harder.

Don Talbot, National Coach The meet is going as I predicted it would. People are being cautious in how they have approached it. I don't think there is a problem with swimming through the meet, but I can't believe it is not important to the kids to win a national championship. I support a short course meet, but there were some very sound reasons why we switched to long. Long course is where it is at in the world. We have enough in country short course swimming.

Jeno Tihanyi, LUSC: This meet is not appropriately timed in view of this year's program. It would have served Canadian swimming better to have a short course meet at the end of December or early January. Most of the swimmers here are preoccupied with the Olympic trials.

I'm unequivocal in my stand against the selection criteria. I think that it will damage Canadian swimming. We'll end up with a decimated team. I think the Olympics are the wrong place to tighten the standards. That's not what the Olympic experience is about.

Swimmers

Vlastimil Cerny, NYAC I have mixed feelings about the selection criteria. I feel sorry for swimmers who have worked for four years, but won't make the cuts. On the other hand I think that if Canada wants to be number one in the world we will have to go with higher standards.

Guylaine Cloutier, SAMAK I'm not really effected by the criteria, but I don't think it's a good idea. The team won't be as big so that may effect morale.

I'm about where I thought I would be for this time of the year, but this meet has been very boring. It has been hard to get "up" for the races.

Claude Lamy, SELCT It is going to be hard to make the team. I know I'm going to do it. When you look at the time it takes to make the team it just makes you work harder and harder and harder. Canadian swimming will be faster than it was.

Mike Meldrum, UCSC I don't agree with the selection criteria. I've been preparing for the last three years for a different standard. I'm not going to let it bother me because I believe I'm going to go that time, but if I was borderline I'd be mad. I've been looking forward to the Olympics for four years, for eight years, well...forever. It would have been better if we had more time to prepare for the new standards.

Turlough O'Hare, CDSC The selection standard has really got me moving. I was aiming at coming top two, but now I'm centred towards swimming fast. That's the way it should be. It has got me back on track.

Karen Ward, SELCT The standard is hard, but that's fine. I'm sure I'm capable of doing those times and if I don't do them I don't deserve to be allowed on the Olympic team. I think people will be swimming faster. ■

STAR TIPS

TOM PONTING ON

TRAINING AND RACING 200 BUTTERFLY

The 200 is more of an endurance race than a sprint. Although you have to get excited for it, you also have to stay calm and have a strategy in mind. It's not the type of race you can swim without a plan or you'll pay for it the last 50 metres.

A typical strategy for a 200 would be to go out fast but comfortable. Have a pace in mind before the race. If you're going out faster than you planned, but it's comfortable, you should keep it up and not try to hold back. Holding back tends to disrupt my rhythm. The whole emphasis with a 200 flyis rhythm. From the first stroke keep it smooth and think of basics; two stroke breathing, double kick, good turns and not breathing off the turns.

You use less explosive power off the turns in the 200 than you do in the 100. You can get to the surface right away and you aren't fighting the kind of waves you are in a 100. Do two or three kicks underwater and come up with your head down. In the 100 that is absolutely necessary, but it is just as important in the 200. It helps get that rhythm. It is very important on the third 50 to keep the rhythm of the first 100 going. Typically in my races I try and pick up the rhythm in the last 50 and make it my second or third fastest 50. Flow right in from the 100. Don't hold back and try to get into a rhythm after the first 100. Establish your rhythm right away

The 200 is really two races; a race to the 150 and then the last length. Concentrate on keeping the rhythm for the first part and then nailing the last length. Remain relaxed and build into it by slowly accelerating. Don't try to change speed in one or two strokes. Concentrate on keeping your hips coming up, keep the two-beat kick and the two stroke breathing count. To stop your stroke from falling apart that last length you have to be used to doing endurance fly.

It will feel sluggish on your last 50. It will happen all the time, you'll always feel that. It is just important to keep the rhythm. The person who keeps the best rhythm on the last length, typically wins.

Fatigue is a huge factor at the end of the 200 fly, specifically because you have used your legs up. You have to keep your head going low enough and your hips are going high enough to pop your legs out so that you can get the maximum. Don't ever drop your hips and try to lift your head up just so you can get more air.

If during the race it doesn't feel right it is still very important to hold that rhythm and not force it. Force it you and you'll break rhythm and once you do that you'll have to expend more energy.

How I finish depends on the specific race. If I'm very comfortable I'll continue with the two stroke breathing, but if I'm not comfortable I could break into a three or four stroke breathing pattern. But if I see an opening to out-touch somebody I will go into the wall without breathing.

You have to get used to adjusting your finish, but you should finish with your arms out stretched, flat out, at the end of your second kick. The arms have just come over the recovery. Whether that is above or below the water is a personal choice.

WARM UP

To warm-up for the 200 fly you should do more "pace" work so that you can fatigue yourself. By pace I don't mean you have to do 50's on 30 the whole warm-up. You can do IM or free or back just to get really tired and then do fly. This helps you adapt to what you will feel like the last length. When you're tired just think of that long, easy stroke and keeping your rhythm.

PRACTICE

Any kind of sets of fly are good for preparing for the 200. Use any opportunity to practice keeping your stroke long when you're getting tired. Any time you can swim fly when you're fatigued it is helping you get ready for that 200 race.

I don't swim a lot of metres of fly, but what I'll do is a hard freestyle set and get fatigued and then do a fly set. In a fly workout we might only do a 1,000 metres of fly out of 8,000 metres, but we'll do a 4,000 m hard set and then do 10x100 on 1:10 fly. It is so important to get used to doing fly when you're tired. You don't have to do 3,000 metres fly to get that. It's not the quantity, but the quality of your work that makes the difference. ■

BACKWASH

Backwash features short clips, gossip, letters and opinion. Contributions are welcomed. Now for the rumours behind the news.

Those who can, do. Those who can't, teach. Or, life after 30... Observers at the Winter Nationals couldn't help but notice U of T coach, Byron MacDonald in his snappy new ortho-girdle. It seems he was in Florida with his team at a training camp and decided, for old times sake, to do a few lengths of fly after the last practice.

"After the first 50 I felt really good, so I figured I'd keep going," said the stiff-backed MacDonald. "I felt a slight twinge in my back at 80 metres, but who's going to stop with 20 metres left." (maybe you?)

"We left Florida that day, but when the plane touched down in Atlanta they had to take me off. I ended up in an Atlanta hospital for ten days and couldn't move."

Ouch. There must be a lesson here somewhere.

The more it changes, the more it stays the same. This letter was written in 1969 by George Gate, 1968 Olympic coach and present Aquatic director of Pointe Claire:

Editor: Competitive swimming in Canada has progressed rapidly since 1950. Swimmers such as Ralph Hutton, Elaine Tanner, Sandy Gilchrist and Jim Shaw have made Canada a name to be respected throughout the world. Most of the swimming fraternity believe that Canada is catching up with the super powers. I do not believe this. We are not progressing as rapidly as other countries. It is time we faced facts and stopped basking in the reflected glory of American trained swimmers. With the exception of swimmers such as Elaine Tanner and Jim Shaw, the high position of Canada in the world of swimming has to be attributed to the American College system. How long must we wait before we see top coaches installed in our universities? How long before athletic scholarships will be offered to swimmers, both male and female, to make it possible for them to continue their swimming careers in their own country? Under our system what incentive is there to take up coaching? Until this happens Canadian swimming will remain on it's launching pad watching in bewilderment as the U.S. swimmers streak for the stars.

What's red, white and blue and lives in Etobicoke? It's the new Etobicoke Swim Club, which is actually just the old ESC in spiffy new duds. The Etobicoke club now has an extra $150,000 per year coming in thanks to their new sponsor Pepsi Cola Canada. In return for the money and support, Etobicoke will be sporting Pepsi's colours. Corporate support looks like the wave of the future for clubs and Etobicoke has caught a big one.

Move over Peckford and make way for Stephen Russell Last November Stephen Russell, a young swimmer from Newfoundland, requested a subscription to SWIM. Since there weren't many subscribers in that area we made a deal with him: get us 10 subscribers and we'll give you yours for free. Capitalism won out and we got 11 new subscriptions from the hard working St. John's entrepreneur. Similar deals are possible with other motivated swimmers. Good work Stephen.

Never trust a letter that has whole sentences in Capitals... We got a very strange, very long letter the other day. It was almost longer than our whole magazine, so we can't publish it, but we can give you some tidbits. One of the subjects was Olympic selection and among other things the letter threatens legal action against SNC if "all qualifiers" (including full relays) can't go to Seoul.

The letter also complained about the efforts being made to secure citzenship for Marcel Gery but neglected to note that Gery has thrown his lot with Canada, lives and intends to stay here.

Maybe the case of Tracy McFarlane, a "Canadian" living in the States should be examined instead. She has said that she wants to swim for the US, but will grudgingly try out for the Canadian team. As EKSC breaststroker, Keltie Duggan said, "I wouldn't mind being bumped by Allison (Higson) or Guylaine (Cloutier), but it would really burn me if Tracy beat me. She doesn't even want to be a Canadian."

Besides muddling the facts the author of this attack did not, predictably, sign it, "out of fear of repercussions against my own swimmer". What country does this person think this is?

Last words from the top

Editor: I am concerned by the opposition from certain elements of the swimming community to Swimming Canada's support for Marcel Gery's citizenship application. Alice Reid of Pointe Claire raised the issue in a recent letter and I understand others from that same province are pursuing an anonymous campaign.

Let's get a couple of things out in the open. Marcel is a genuine refugee who defected from Czechoslovakia in 1986. He is now a qualified landed immigrant with an exemplary record and will undoubtedly qualify for citizenship when the three year waiting period is fulfilled. Swimming Canada is simply supporting a speeding-up of the process so that he can swim as a Canadian at Seoul. We do this not only for Marcel's benefit but in the national interest and the interest of Canadian swimming.

We believe that if Marcel qualifies to anchor one or more of the relays, these teams would have excellent potential for medals at the '88 Summer Olympics. If he isn't allowed to swim, the chances are substantially diminished. It is also a widely held view that Marcel is the only hope for one of the relays to even qualify. This, of course, would mean that he could be responsible for pulling along other swimmers who might not otherwise make it. Don't the other relay team members deserve the best support they can get to enhance their chances to share in the medals? I believe I know what the swimmers' answer would be.

One of the deepest disappointments I have experienced since joining the swimming community just over a year ago is the discovery that ugly parochial self interest is a sizeable cancer in our sport. Can we not, at least every fourth year, pull together as a country? I urge all of your readers who will share my pride seeing Marcel swim as a Canadian citizen, to write their member of parliament and the Honourable David Crombie in support of his application.

I've seen the future...and I don't think I'm going to like it... Michael Gross was a no show at the Arena Meet in Bonn. He disagrees with the FRG Swim Federation's 10% grab of the trust funds he's accumulated. Gross protests claiming he's earned the money without their help.

OLYMPIC SELECTION

GETTING THERE IS THE DREAM

N.J. THIERRY

Swimming in the Olympics has never been easy.

The 1988 selection criteria has caused a greater than usual degree of unrest. For the best part of this century, and more so in the post-war era, qualifying for an Olympic team has always been difficult.

Canadian swimmers had to contend with selection trials, stiff standards and in earlier times, often terrible conditions. The overall team size, usually imposed by the COA (Canadian Olympic Association) would further limit the numbers.

Taking part is just an illusion. Placing in finals and winning medals has been the main goal. This is why we get funds from Sport Canada and the COA. The Olympic Goal has always been citus, altius, fortius...swifter, higher, stronger.

Performance and team size are intimately related. As swimming results improved teams and staff increased, although there has been an almost tripling of the events during the past 20 years.

The question of who belongs at the Olympics has always been a source of debate. When coaching and facilities were virtually non-existent, our teams were not expected to perform. Making the team was the goal (it still seems to be for some). As conditions improved and substantial funding injected, athletes were expected to be contenders. Fringe athletes are still taking part as less developed federations are encouraged to 'participate' sometimes at their own risk (lack of skill). This is reinforced to some degree by the IOC as travel support is available for these backward sporting nations. Following the Winter Olympics, Richard Pound an IOC Vice-President (former Canadian swimmer) stated "We've given a lot of athletes a chance to compete. Maybe we'll have to get back to demanding 'qualifying performances' from all competitors."

All major swimming nations require standards for their Olympic selection. Only the United States has sent the maximum allowable teams. Successful countries send small teams who have met tough criteria. This is particularly true with the best performing teams from the GDR. Australia (a traditional swimming power) make it very tough to qualify—hoping to get their 'survivors' ready for the pressures of the Olympics. France uses the same 2/country ranking as Canada (in fact using our statistics to arrive at their standard).

This year there will be two opportunities for selection. Another departure from past practice. Any spots remaining after the trials may be tried for at Nationals in August. The criteria around relays will probably result in several additional spots.

Why have standards? At all levels of our sport time standards have become the norm, as not everyone can take part, be it in a local invitational, provincial and especially national level meets where travel support is available to 'qualifiers'. There are those who feel strongly that 'stiffer' standards results in improved performance. Others argue that bigger participation (easier standards) result in faster swimming.

In the 1948 and 52 Games there were only 11 events (combined total) and the Canadian team sizes were 10 and 11 respectively. There were no individual finalist in either Games. In 1952 the team was selected off trials held in Toronto at Hart House, a 25-yard, 5-lane pool.

The trials for the 1956 Games were held in Toronto in a 50-yard outdoor facility in dismally cold conditions. The stiff standards produced a six-member women's team but only two men. It was a big letdown for many, especially those who won Canadian championships. Once in Melbourne, the eight member team was able to earn five positions in the finals with the women's free relay finishing fifth.

Winnipeg was the site of the trials for the 1960 Rome Olympics, held in a 25-metre six lane pool. The small team size and stiff selection standards prevented all but a handful of event winners to be named to the team. Results at the Games didn't keep up with the expanded program as the 400 IM and the medley relay were added but the eight member team (4+4) managed one individual final (6th in the 100 free by Richard Pound) and a fourth in the men's medley relay.

In 1964 the 12 member team (4 men and 8 women) had its best showing with seven individual spots in the finals and the two women's relays finishing sixth and seventh. At the trials, held in Vancouver at UBC over 55-yards and outdoors in early September, the restriction on the overall team size (COA imposed) of 14 including divers and stiff selection times prevented many national champions from earning a team spot. To further complicate the selection process two swimmers made the team who were Canadian citizens but had done all their swimming in the USA. This resulted in some CASA requirements for future 'Canadian-Americans.' They had to compete in selected meets prior to a selection trials and must have joined the association a year prior to selection. These rules stayed in effect until last fall. No team could have more than 10% of the team by swimmers in this category.

Selection of the 1968 team was again marked by controversy as CASA recommended a 21-member team but COA only allowed the 15 swimmers who had reached the previously published selection standard to go. The Olympic program had been expanded to 29 events.

Swimmers won four of the five medals Canada got at the 1968 Games. It was a real turning point. The last swimming medal was won in 1928.

The men placed in eight events with all three relays in the finals, Ralph Hutton winning a silver in the 400 free. Elaine Tanner won two silvers in both backstrokes and helped the women's free relay to a bronze (this could have been a silver if additional swimmers could have been brought to the Olympics). All told the swimmers had 12 individual spots in finals and four of the five relays made it through.

The 1972 trials produced the largest team to represent Canada at the Olympics with 38 (20 women and 18 women), recognizing the success of swimmers during the past four years. The momentum from the previous Games was sustained with another four medal performance. The trials were held in mid-August in Winnipeg just a couple of weeks prior to the Munich Olympics. Five 'Canadian-Americans' were trying for a spot on the team with two earning a spot.

The men had a silver from Bruce Robertson in the 100 fly (with Byron MacDonald finishing sixth) and the medley relay placing third. All three men's relays reached finals.

Donna Marie Gurr won a bronze in the 200 back and Leslie Cliff a silver in the 400 IM.

In 1976, the last Games where up to three swimmers could be entered, a double-barrelled set of standards had to be met. These had been issued by FINA to keep the overall meet size down. Each country could have one entry without any standard but if two or three were to be entered they had to meet progressively stiffer standards.

The early June trials held in Etobicoke were the most successful of recent times with great depth of performances (especially from the women) as shown by the following; 18 women earned a spot on the team but there were a total of 90 performances reaching the required FINA standard. While the men's team was slightly bigger at 20, only 48 qualifying performances were done. Several swimmers missed the team by a few hundreds of a second (either by finishing fourth or missing the required standard). Great controversy was aroused by the addition of Stephen Badger to the Canadian team. He was an Australian (winner of the 1974 Commonwealth Games 200 free) whose coach had come to Winnipeg. He became eligible to represent Canada by some never before known "Commonwealth switch" rule.

The 1976 team won eight medals (Canada's overall total was 11) with a silver from the men's medley relay a and a seven medal total from the women. They won a silver and five bronzes with both relays finishing third. The two outstanding performances on the women's team were the 2nd-3rd finish in the 400 IM (Cheryl Gibson and Becky Smith) and 3rd, 4th, 5th finish in the 100 backstroke.

Team size in 1980 was down somewhat (13 women and 17 men) as stiff standards and the boycott of the Moscow Olympics put an obvious damper on everyone's enthusiasm.

1984 had another 38 member (19+19). Previously published standards were dropped once the Soviet block nations announced their boycott. All one-two finishers earned an automatic Olympic berth. Two world records were bettered during the trials, again at Etobicoke in early June. For the first time a swimmer was named to the team without taking part in the trials. (Ottenbrite had an injured knee but was a prime medal prospect).

The 10 medal total with four golds from Los Angeles was the highest ever. Baumann and Davis improved their world marks and were unquestionably number one. Ottenbrite recovered from her injury and won the 200 breast, adding a silver in the 100 and a bronze in the medley relay. Without the boycott the medal total might have been smaller but that's conjecture.

But prospects for 1988 look less bright than in 1972-86.

The 1986 world championships gave indication that some of the momentum has been lost. The 33-member Canadian team in Madrid (GDR had only 27 swimmers, winning 30 medals) had nine spots in individual finals and two of the five relays in finals. Total medals were five (1 gold, 2 silver and 2 bronze). Selection was from the Commonwealth Games with one-two finishers in each event automatic.

Baumann has retired and will be hard to replace. Best medal bets will be Davis, Tewksbury, and Higson with the men's medley relay strongest. Everyone else on the team will have to improve and be able to do a heat swim in Seoul under extreme pressure to get a second swim. Not a likely prospect for most if recent history holds true.

Getting there is the dream. Sucess rewards those who make the struggle and take the journey. ■

OLYMPIC RELAY SELECTION CRITERIA

The following is an explanation as to the procedure to be followed for selecting the 1988 Olympic Relays as discussed by the Swimming Canada Technical Committee during the Winter Nationals Feb.4-5.

4x100 free men (3:21,74)
4X100 free women (3:47.76)
4x200 free men (7:21.91)

The top four finishers must have an overall total time equalling or less than the published standard. An 0.5sec./swimmer allowance for each swimmer 2nd through 4th positions will be made to arrive at overall time.

Alternates will be selected according to the following:

Finishers: 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 4th = equal or better then selection time

1st alternate: 5th finisher plus time of any three of the first four finishers = equal or better than selection time.

2nd alternate: 6th finisher plus time of 3rd, 4th, 5th finishers

3rd alternate: 7th finisher plus time of 4th, 5th and 6th finishers

4th alternate: 8th finisher plus time of 5th, 6th, and 7th finishers

In all cases their overall time must equal or better published selection time.

4x100 medley men (3:43.90)
4x100 medley women (4:12.89)

Alternates will only be considered for a stroke where two swimmers have not qualified in the individual event.

Alternates will be considered for any open position if their time added to the fastest three other legs equals or betters published selection time.

Additional Criteria

- If all available positions in an event have been filled at the Olympic Trials, the event is considered closed and no alternates will be considered.
- If at the conclusion of the Olympic Trials a position remains open—these may only be filled at Summer Nationals.
- A non-qualifying second place finisher in an individual event may decline selection as a relay alternate in order to attempt qualifying for any available individual event position at Summer Nationals.

CANADA'S FIRST SWIM CAMPS

CAMP AK-O-MAK CAMP CHIKOPI

AK-O-MAK/CHIKOPI

Learn social skills with boys and girls from 12 countries while enjoying your Canadian heritage. Do your summer swimming outdoors.

Summers swimming should be outdoors with a tan.

Swim in the crystal water of Ahmic Lake (north of Parry Sound).

Swim open water and in our five regulation bulkhead pools.

For cardiovascular efficiency that's fun: race canoes and for upper body strength, run on our mossy patches.

Do you want a first class swim program designed by Olympic coaches for age group swimmers?

Or

Do you want a real wilderness experience with cabin life and canoe trips?

Only these camps have both.

- Chosen as CASA development camp for the last 17 consecutive years.
- Chosen as the U.S. Long Distance Training Camp for the 1986 World Championships in Europe.
- The camp kayak-canoe team is a 25-year member of CCA (Canadian Canoes Assoc.) and winner of 3 Canadian National Championships.
- The camp swim team won the U.S. long distance title an unprecedented 6 times 1981-86. Buck Dawson and Bob Duenkel honored as the 1987 All-American Long Distance Coaches.
- Chikopi Director, Bob Duenkel chosen as official 1987-88 U.S. National and World Cup Team Coach for Long Distance Swimming.
- Ak-O-Mak Director, Buck Dawson chosen for U.S. Swimming's 1987 highest award.
- 1988 U.S. Olympic head swim coach Richard Quick was a camper. He is one of 12 Olympic coaches, 40 Olympic swimmers and 300 All-Americans who have gone to these famous camps.
- 16 Olympic and national swim coaches including Howard Firby and Doc Counsilman have taught and sent their own children to Chikopi and Ak-O-Mak.
- Swimmers from every Olympic Games since 1920 started at these camps.

All this plus: One-on-one coaching, 100% speed training, fartlek workouts, videotaping, stroke drills, movement education, weight training and open water rhythm and cadence. Plus skills taught in 25 other sports. When you're not swimming, we have our own golf course, tennis courts, sailing fleet, racing kayaks and more...

You don't have to be great but you must have desire. You'll come home strong, faster, refreshed and feeling very good about yourself.

All this in one seven week season. (June 24-August 12) Cost $1795.00
